

K&K Architects

PALY Architects

ELASTIC Architects

ZEGE Architects

Renew Architects

GFRA Architecture

Potiropoulos+Partners

GEM Architects

KP Architects

Alexandros N. Tombazis and Associates Architects

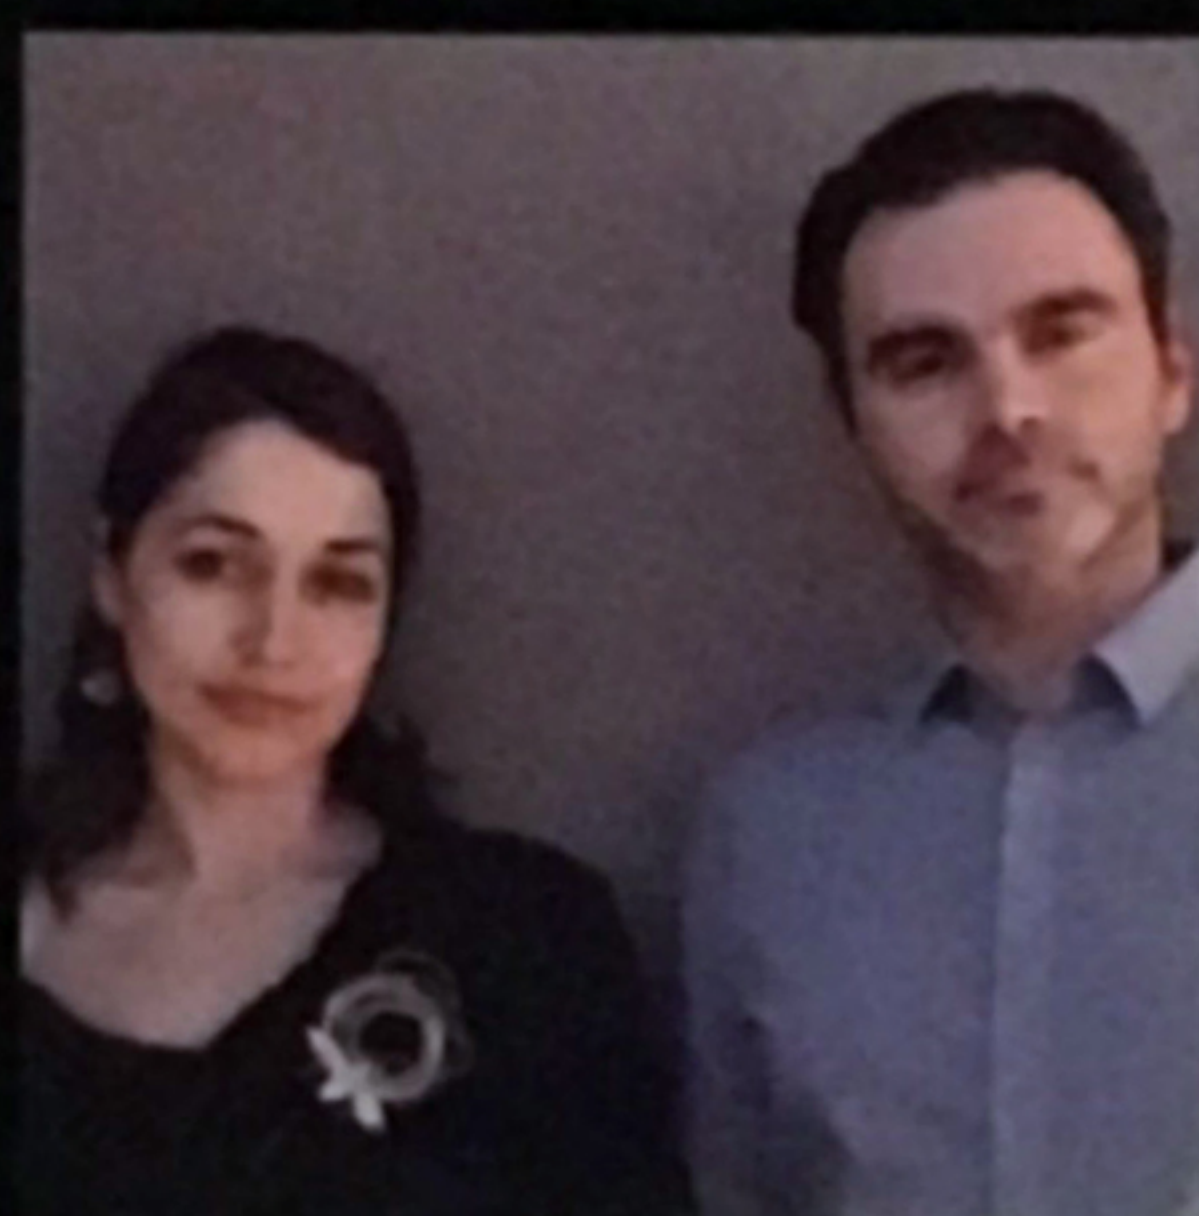

Schema 4 Architects

ALD architecture
landscape design

Urban Soul Project

MGXM Architects

K.Kyriakides & Associates

AETER Architects

20 Important Projects of the Year

& the most reputable architectural firms are talking about minimalism

Soft Curves

Photographer: Theodosios Georgiadis

The relocation of the Ophthalmological Company of Northern Greece on the 6th floor of an historic building in the center of Thessaloniki became the motivation for the redesign of the company's headquarters. The program included a seminar hall for 30 people that could be expanded occasionally to fit up to 60 people, a conference room, a reception, a storage room, a kitchenette and a wc. The space should also function as a club for the company's members. The glazed facade that is oriented to the south provides an unobstructed view to the street below. We chose to highlight this feature by leaving the southern part of the plan free of high furniture. A see-through curved, custom made, bookcase is placed in the middle of the floor plan. Its curved shape is "followed" by two curtains that enclose and define the 30 and 60 people seminar areas. A second curved construction surrounds the secondary spaces of the storage room, the wc and the open kitchenette. The two curves define the transition from the entrance to the meetings' area. The glazed facade is covered by a graphic pattern designed specifically for the space and printed on sunshades made of perforated fabric.